

What is Troupe d' Jour's Shakespeare Camp & Midsummer ShakespeareanceSM?

It is a day-camp for learning acting skills through study and performance of Shakespeare's plays, taught by experienced theater artists and educators.

What will I do in camp?

Actors learn and develop these skills:

Movement

Voice

Diction

Text Analysis

Character

Development

Improvisation

Ensemble Work

Stage Combat

Dance

Journal-keeping

What will I gain?

While developing characters for roles on stage, our young actors learn character traits for their roles in life. Through fun activities and interactive study, campers

- Embrace responsibility
- Deepen comprehension skills
- Work well with others
- Excel in performance
- Grow in confidence and self-esteem.

A Word About Our Covenant

In keeping with the goals of our program, every actor will have speaking roles. Actors will be expected to work diligently. The two most important practices established in this program involve respect: first, for one another; then, for the work. Promptness in attendance and self-discipline in behavior meet only the minimum expectations, as the ensemble's success depends on each individual doing his and her best.

I've learned more about myself and acting than words can say."
participant, 14 years old, 2005

"Thank you for the experience you have given our children. I believe God gives us unique talents and abilities... We are all richer because you have chosen not only to develop yours but to share them with others. Thank you again for sharing your love of Shakespeare and theater with us."
Parent, 2000

"We commend your ability to educate and entertain... and value you as an artist and teacher who makes a positive difference in the lives of our young people."
Director, Navarro Council of the Arts, 2001

"... because of you I have the courage to dream big and chase after those dreams. I don't know if I want to be an actress, but I do know I have the courage to try. Wherever my life may lead me, whatever my future may hold, just know that you've made such a difference in my life."
